Dear Iris Growers,

What a season we have all had. Extreme weather in many places changing from extreme wet to extreme dry and then in the early winter extreme cold and heavy snow endured by many. How resilient most plants are! The irises in particular, surviving most of this and then still rewarding us with wonderful bloom.

As I mentioned last season we have downsized our Tall Bearded beds. It is so hard to decide what to keep and what to cull. Many that we have not transplanted were still wonderful irises and it is very hard to let go of them. We did allow many to sell out, not keeping the usual stock on hand. We were also very late in the transplant, deciding to reduce the plum tree numbers, as these old trees were causing us a lot of work due to having to removing dangerous limbs or having to clean up branches that had fallen. This has given us new ground for the TB beds. We still have retained quite a number of the trees and these will continue to enhance the background to the iris beds.

I am also happy to report that the loss of the huge old walnut tree has been softened by the young walnuts that I had planted, producing their first significant crop and I harvested a good box full. I expect more again this coming season.

We are trusting that our good health will continue for the coming season and that we will be able to open the garden on late October and early November as usual.

Enjoy your irises.

OUR IRISES

It can be helpful to know the names of the hybridisers and the year of registration - these follow the name of the iris.

The irises bred here in Nelson by David and Alison Nicoll have been selected because they grow and flower well here in New Zealand

NEW INTRODUCTIONS 2013 - 2014

We have great pleasure to introduce the following new Bearded Iris for David Nicoll.

Pictures of these are on the cover and many others can be seen at www.irisgardennz.co.nz

Tall Bearded (TB) at $30.00

APARIMA: (TB) [D. Nicoll 2013] E. Vigorous, multi-stemmed beauty. The strong structured reddish purple blooms are enhanced by the bright red beard. Plenty of stems; plenty of blooms.

DINGLE BURN: (TB) [D. Nicoll 2013] E/M. Produces flowers of good substance in a broad modern form. The brilliant violet of the standards and falls is off set by a pleasant light violet to white area around the orange beard. Notable for its clear pristine colour

WALKING BY: (TB) [D. Nicoll 2013]M. Large blooms and vigorous plant. Tightly closed standards of deep reddish purple with dark purple falls and reddish hafts. Yellow/orange beards. Stands out in the garden.

WINGATUI: (TB) (D. Nicoll 2013) E/M Large light purple blooms with speckling on the hafts. Falls have a white centre. The red beards have white tips. A strong flower and a strong plant. An unusual name with an unusual background.
